

Shaping Hands, Hearts and Minds through Education

The Seventh National Association for Palliative Care Educators Conference

A two day conference being held on:
Friday September 4th and the morning of Saturday
September 5th 2009

at Warwick University Arts Centre

Hosted by the West Midlands Palliative Care Teachers Forum

NAPCE

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION for PALLIATIVE CARE EDUCATORS

Registered Charity No: 1105508

Objectives

The shaping hands hearts and minds through education theme reflects the broad spectrum of skills necessary for quality palliative care education at the end of life. This conference brings together leading experts in the field to discuss the central issues and practical application of education as a means to improving palliative care. This is the only palliative care conference in the UK that has education as its central theme.

It is anticipated that delegates will benefit from:-

- A raised awareness of current education initiatives to improve palliative care
- A deeper understanding of how these initiatives can be implemented
- Develop skills to help them in their teaching
- An opportunity to network and learn from each others ideas and experience.

Who should attend?

Shaping Hands Hearts and Minds through Education is aimed at everybody involved in palliative care education from all disciplines. No matter how large or small your contribution to education there will be something of interest to you.

The conference will be of particular interest to the following people:-

- Specialist & senior nurses in cancer & palliative care – whether Macmillan, Marie Curie or NHS
- Allied Health Professionals
- Consultants in palliative care
- All trainees in palliative medicine
- General Practitioners with an interest in palliative care
- Lecturers in palliative care – Hospice, Further/Higher Education or independent
- Practice Development Nurses
- Practice Educators
- Lecturer Practitioners
- Community Nurses
